A Thousand Skeletons.

A Chattanuoga correspondent tells i

A Chattanooga correspondent tells a singular story of several acres of skeletons laid bare by the recent floods in the Tennessee river.

The high water of the recent flood washed about four feet of earth from ten or fifteen acres of land lying along the Tennessee river on the farm of Mr. Jas.
Pieter, near Louisville, in Blount county. About two feet of soil was removed from the same ground by the high tide of 1867.

When the waters subsided, after the last flood, a strange spectacle was presented. The whole of the denuded area was covered with skeletons. Some were was covered with skeletons. Some were straight, some reclining, some doubled up and some in a sitting posture. There were the osseous forms of infants, of children and of full grown persons. Mr. Prater has counted over a thousand Persons who have lived in the vicinity of this mysterious cemetery for sixty-five years never heard of any human bones being discovered there before. The skeletons, we understand, are not found in a mound nor in what appears to be an artificial formation of the earth. We understand one or more mounds were partially washed away in Meige county, disclosing skeletons, stone hatch ets, and pipes, and implements common among the Indians. The skeletons in Blount county probably occupy a burying a ound, which, perhaps centuries ago, was covered up by the same agency which has now exposed its occupants to view.
